The Happy Student - How to Learn

Obviously work hard and make sure you get grades that you're happy with, but remember that GCSEs aren't the be-all and end-all. Most universities don't really care what grades you got at GCSE as long as you've got your five pass grades (including English and Maths), and that your predicted grades for A-levels are good.

New Year New Beginning: How to Start a New Life in 12 Steps

Ceasing to seek power over people and outcomes in your life is the first major step to living peacefully. Trying to control people is about seeking to impose your will and reality on others. But by doing so—even with the best of intentions—this forcing your will on others takes away the power from others and causes a great imbalance which can lead to anger, hurt, and resentment.

Use strong role models. Integrate role models from the community into your classroom. The more role models from different walks of life your students see, the more they will feel that a good attitude can apply to any situation. Bring in a policewoman or fireman from the community and have them discuss how they approach the difficult aspects of their jobs with a positive attitude.

#1 NEW YORK TIMES BEST SELLER • At last, a book that shows you how to build—design—a life you can thrive in, at any age or stage Designers create worlds and solve problems using design thinking. Look around your office or home—at the tablet or smartphone you may be holding or the chair you are sitting in. Everything in our lives was designed by someone. And every design starts with a problem that a designer or team of designers seeks to solve. In this book, Bill Burnett and Dave Evans show us how design thinking can help us create a life that is both meaningful and fulfilling, regardless of who or where we are, what we do or have done for a living, or how young or old we are. The same design thinking responsible for amazing technology, products, and spaces can be used to design and build your career and your life, a life of fulfillment and joy, constantly creative and productive, one that always holds the possibility of surprise.
